Background:

Gretchen Mary Krampf is a principal and co-founder of Process Experts LLC. She has more than thirty years' experience in the fields of education, behavioral science, leadership development and business management. She assists entrepreneurs, executives and organizational leaders to successfully move forward, define personal leadership, identify success strategies and create environments for personal development, innovation and accelerated learning. She works in individual coaching relationships, with a specialty in coaching high-performing, high-achieving women. She has facilitated dialogues on diversity and generational shifts as well as coaching high-performing teams.

As an Executive Coach, Gretchen is a catalyst for positive, proactive change in action-oriented individuals who want to do and be their best. She works with leaders and high potential executives on honing their leadership style, improving results-oriented communication skills, increasing their emotional intelligence and creating work and lifestyle balance. Successful entrepreneurs and senior executives value her keen intuition and her role as a challenging, yet empathetic, sounding board for their creativity, leadership, resource management and business development.

Ms. Krampf works extensively with organizations and HR professionals to develop gender equity and diversity awareness, skills training and leadership development programs. Clients include private industry, non-profit, educational institutions and government agencies.
